Northern Irish baker Viola Dono takes the reader on a literary expedition back to the first years of the 20th century. On the journey the reader encounters some rare archives from the life of Harland & Wolff shipbuilder Thomas Andrews, including the poem which hung on his bedroom wall in his Belfast lodgings. The story moves across the sea to Brooklyn New York, then back to Ireland again. A gem of a book which encompasses a touching love story, sprinkled with many precious, authentic recipes in between. The book raises some enduring questions in the mind of the reader, reawakened with original quotations from some of the greatest writers, poets and thinkers of past times. “especially enjoyed the recipes and the comments both Eliza and Lillie made on them. Some of the recipes my Mummy made for us when we were growing up. Stuffed sausages made a regular appearance on our dinner table.” “you must write the follow up about the years that followed after...can’t wait to find out what happened to Granny next” “particularly enjoyed the thoughts of the Irish writers – Yeats, Katherine Tynan and William Carleton all hold a special place in my heart”
